All of Longmoor Security's staff have served within either the British Army or the UK Police Force, or those that we have trained. All are known to us and are experts in their field.

PROTECTING YOUR WORLD

At the heart of Longmoor Security lies the secret of our success – the consultancy team. A core of experts on hand to advise upon a variety of complex security matters.

As well as their own in-depth knowledge they are able to consult with other professionals in the Group providing you with the best and most appropriate advice available.

INTERNATIONAL MEET AND GREET

INTERNATIONAL MEET AND GREET

Through our extensive network of offices and agents around the world we are able to offer an International Meet and Greet service on every Continent. Utilising our tried and trusted network we are able to offer our clients a local "representative" who will facilitate movement and integration through the country or region.

Our representative will meet you at the airport and guide you safely and discreetly around the country. Whether you need our local representative to accompany you during your trip or simply be on hand should you need them in an emergency Longmoor Security has a dedicated worldwide team to assist you.

By having a local and trusted individual on hand when in a foreign country to assist with cultural issues, translation and much more, we are able to reduce much of the anxiety when travelling.

SECURITY RISK ANALYSIS

SECURITY RISK ANALYSIS

Security Risk Analysis (Risk Assessments) and Penetration Testing is fundamental to the security of our clients' organisation. It is essential in ensuring that controls, procedures and expenditure are fully appropriate to the risks to which our clients are exposed.

In response to the increased tempo of global terrorist operations Longmoor Security assess an organisation's security profile and threat vulnerabilities from terrorism and sabotage. We are then able to recommend practical and independent equipment, training and manning solutions that meet exactly with our clients' needs.

Our team assess the weakness of clients' security strategy, operational plans and existing protective security measures; devising tactics to breach and defeat them, in the same way that a terrorist might. This service is delivered by conducting a comprehensive Security Risk Analysis and security penetration or planning test exercise. Following the analysis, the client is advised on issues that may affect their organisation's business continuity or incident management plan.

MEDICAL SUPPORT

Longmoor Security understands that medical training and medical support is essential in safeguarding individuals and groups of people whilst at home or travelling.

Longmoor Security has teamed with some of the most experienced medical practitioners in the world to form The Medical Wing.

The Medical Wing is an independent provider of high class medical support staff, training and equipment. The Medical Wing also offers an indepth consultancy service that provides our clients with advice and guidance for their workforce or family in UK and overseas.

All Medical Wing staff have served with either the British Army's Special Air Service (SAS) Medical Wing or the highly regarded UK Paramedic service. The combination of these backgrounds enables us to deliver to our clients the highest level of specialist medical training outside of the military or Ambulance Service.

SPECIALISED TRAINING

Our training department understands that relevant and regular training instils confidence in the individual's decision-making process, especially whilst operating under pressure. We understand that this is of paramount importance in preparing to counter modern security threats.

All of the courses that Longmoor offer have been accredited by a United Kingdom government approved awarding body or an international education centre.

Longmoor has a wealth of experience in delivering specialist training to both military and civilian personnel worldwide. With an ethos of using only the finest personnel from the British Military or UK Police, Longmoor Training is ideally positioned to offer the most practical and comprehensive solutions to your training needs

SPECIAL PROJECTS

Longmoor Special Projects department was developed to provide our larger clients with a complete security solution. Special Projects is able to lead your security solutions from inception through to implementation to continual assessment and update.

Drawing from the knowledge of experts from the wider security industry we are able to tackle some of the most complex security issues in today's world.

Special Projects has been instrumental in providing bespoke security risk management and training solutions for a variety of clients that include governments, armed forces and international corporations.
